Federal officials are more than pleased with the outcome of the first trial centered on the activities of pro-tierman aympathizers. While no question of neutrality was involved in the Hamburg-American case, it was pointed out that the technical violation of the customs laws gave this Government its chance to curb the activities which turned New York into a German navalbase, and grounds may be found for court action in connection with other movements.

Judge Howe could impose four years in prison and $29,000 fine on each of the individual defendants, and $29,000 fine on the Hamburg-American line, under pravisions of the indictment's two counts.

It is thought likely, however, that he will sentence on only one of the counts, thus cutting the penalty in half. The fine or prison sentence, et both, are optional with the court.
